

The Gravy Infusion

Rick Childers, Chris Green, Thena Badger, Hannah From, Ainsley Golden
Adam Lemaster, Chris Miller, Erika Wilson, Heather Dent, Lilly Rice

Silas House

Jason Howard

Bobby Starnes

Ian Williamson
Lie Ford

Happy Holidays!

Friends, here we are: the end of another semester, maybe feeling like our brain-bones have been worn bare but perhaps also having done a thing or two worth doing. While being back in person and picking up the pace has been exhausting, we have been wholly buoyed by the good (at times hard) work, connections, and joy along the way.

In celebration of Work Well Done, our front page shares photos of everyone included in the Appalachian Center’s “we,” and the back page shares some of what we (often in partnership) have done—sort of like an 8.5 x 11 Christmas Card . . . (oh, well).

We are SO THANKFUL to be able to do this work and for being connected with you. May your hol(y)days be filled. ~Chris Green

Chris Green

Christmas poems by our Director Chris Green!

Bright the berries red on holly and dogwood bough,
'round the season bound.
With skies grey cloaked, a fox waits in its ivy-layered thicket.

Art by Heather Dent

The bared black walnuts, their winding necks gristly with clumps of mistletoe.

Fall Highlights

Cancer in Appalachia Exhibit and Talk

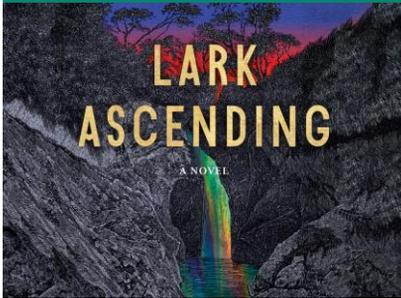

Volunteer Trips to Eastern Kentucky

Farmers Market Booths and other Community Events

Release of Silas House's Lark Ascending

49th Annual Celebration of Traditional Music

Unveiling of monument marking the end of the March on Blair Mountain

Student trip to Big Stone Gap for Love Fest

Robert Thurman Art Exhibit and Talk

Annette Clapsaddle Reading

The Appalachian Review has 3 new issues for 2022!

Learn more about them and how to order at their website HERE!