Number of cooperating teachers/K-12 staff supervising clinical experience during this academic year

Please provide any additional information about or descriptions of the supervised clinical experiences:

In a typical academic year, teacher candidates engage in a variety of course-embedded field experiences where they develop and demonstrate the knowledge, skills, dispositions, and professional responsibilities of effective teachers. Per state regulation, all teacher candidates must have a minimum of 200 hours in supervised clinical experiences. Additionally, those hours must include participation in specified activities (e.g., attending a school board meeting, observing students, participating in a professional learning community) and engagement with various student populations when either observing or assisting with instruction in the P-12 classroom. Faculty monitor teacher candidates' behavior and performance by checking in with the school administration and cooperating teachers. Faculty complete observations in the advanced clinical experiences where teacher candidates gain more responsibility in the classroom by planning and implementing lessons.

Teachers Prepared

On this page, enter the number of program completers by the subject area in which they were prepared to teach, and by their academic majors. Note that an individual can be counted in more than one academic major and subject area. For example, if an individual is prepared to teach Elementary Education and Mathematics, that individual should be counted in both subject areas. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major or subject area, you may leave the cell blank. Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the teachers prepared data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

Teachers Prepared by Subject Area

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by subject area for academic year 2021-22.

For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Subject area" refers to the subject area(s) an individual has been prepared to teach. An individual can be counted in more than one subject area. If no individuals were prepared in a particular subject area, please leave that cell blank. (§205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\))

What are CIP codes? The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) provides a taxonomic scheme that supports the accurate tracking and reporting of fields of study and program completions activity. CIP was originally developed by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in 1980, with revisions occurring in 1985, 1990, and 2000 (<https://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/cipcode/Default.aspx?y=55>).

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2021-22. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. (§205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\))

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

Program Assurances

THIS PAGE INCLUDES:

>> Program Assurances

Respond to the following assurances. Teacher preparation programs should be prepared to provide documentation and evidence, when requested, to support the following assurances. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(A\)\(iii\); §206\(b\))

Program Assurances

Note: This section is preloaded from the prior year's IPRC.

1. Program preparation responds to the identified needs of the local educational agencies or States where the program completers are likely to teach, based on past hiring and recruitment trends.

- Yes
 No

2. Preparation is closely linked with the needs of schools and the instructional decisions new teachers face in the classroom.

- Yes
 No

3. Prospective special education teachers are prepared in core academic subjects and to instruct in core academic subjects.

- Yes
 No
 Program does not prepare special education teachers

4. Prospective general education teachers are prepared to provide instruction to students with disabilities.

- Yes
 No

5. Prospective general education teachers are prepared to provide instruction to limited English proficient students.

- Yes
 No

6. Prospective general education teachers are prepared to provide instruction to students from low-income families.

- Yes
 No

7. Prospective teachers are prepared to effectively teach in urban and rural schools, as applicable.

- Yes
 No

8. Describe your institution's most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

In the foundational education course (Introduction of Education: Thinking about Learning and Teaching), prospective teacher candidates begin to study the varied student populations that they will serve and collaborate with in their clinical field experiences. Candidates study systemic inequality as it relates to marginalized populations (i.e., students and families who live in poverty, English language learners, students with special needs, women, and males of color). EDS 150 focuses on the historical and sociological underpinnings of educational policy and related legislation in the United States. As teacher candidates progress through the program, they participate in coursework with embedded clinical field experiences as well as internships that provide opportunities to engage with students representing multiple demographic groups. Teacher candidates learn to develop and deliver lessons using culturally responsive instruction in their advanced methods coursework so that they can apply those principles in their student teaching experience.

Partnerships with district personnel and state administration provide information on needs that exist in the field. Faculty prepare teacher candidates for practice by understanding the classroom and school demographics within partner districts. Our partner districts include both rural and urban schools that serve low-income student populations (Berea Independent Schools, Madison County Public Schools, Fayette County Public Schools, and Scott County Public Schools). With a solid understanding of the student populations, faculty help teacher candidates connect theory and practice as they work with students in the field. Additionally, EDS administers completer and employer surveys to identify the strengths and areas for improvement of first-year teachers. EDS utilizes this survey data to evaluate program effectiveness and to determine the extent to which EDS is adequately preparing candidates for the challenges experienced by completers during their first year of teaching. Outside of clinical field experiences, EDS maintains relationships with district partners by electing administrators and teachers to serve on college committees and to participate in professional development groups. Our Teacher Preparation Accountability Committee (TPAC) is an advisory board consisting of school administrators, cooperating teachers at three grade levels (elementary, middle, and high), EDS faculty and staff, and college administration. The TPAC has been discussing low-enrollment programs, which happen to overlap with critical shortage areas in our region. STEM education is a particular concern, and we are addressing this by collaborating with the Yahng Discovery Center (YDC), which is directed by an EDS faculty member. The YDC has initiatives that include hiring teacher candidates to coordinate science outreach programs for local schools, supporting STEM faculty with identifying and recruiting potential STEM teacher candidates, and utilizing funds from a National Science Foundation (NSF) grant to specifically recruit Mathematics teacher candidates. To further address low-enrollment programs and critical shortage areas, EDS partnered with a consulting agency who will gather local, state, and national data. Teacher candidates learn to develop and implement instruction that explicitly addresses the needs of students with disabilities and students with limited English proficiency. Beginning with lesson planning, teacher candidates are instructed and evaluated on classroom context and selecting materials. For classroom context, teacher candidates describe the cultural and linguistic backgrounds of students and their families as well as information regarding students with IEPs and ILPs, including English proficiency levels. When selecting materials, teacher candidates are asked to consider the use of multicultural literature, artifacts from popular culture, pictures representing diversity, and technological resources that will promote student engagement. When implementing their lessons, teacher candidates connect students' funds of knowledge and cultural knowledges to the instruction and assessments. They include accommodations made for students with IEPs or ILPs. When describing and reflecting on assessments, teacher candidates describe how English language learners and/or students with IEPs will be assessed by using visual or other forms of representation. During the Student Teaching term, teacher candidates design and teach a unit plan that differentiates instruction according to students' abilities and needs. Teacher candidates provide details about the students for whom the instructional unit is designed. They describe ability levels, including IEPs (and what they entail) and the language proficiency levels for English language. Teacher candidates provide a bulleted list that summarizes the class' funds of knowledge as well as describe how accommodations will be incorporated for all sub-groups. Accommodations consider students' needs, abilities, and strengths when determining the support and resources needed for learning during the unit, particularly students who have 504 plans, IEPs, ILPs, and GT.

Annual Goals: Mathematics

Each institution of higher education (IHE) that conducts a traditional teacher preparation program (including programs that offer any ongoing professional development programs) or alternative route teacher preparation program, and that enrolls students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall set annual quantifiable goals for increasing the number of prospective teachers trained in teacher shortage areas designated by the Secretary or by the state educational agency, including mathematics, science, special education, and instruction of limited English proficient students.

Assessment Pass Rates

THIS PAGE INCLUDES:

>> Assessment Pass Rates

The pass rates table is populated from files provided by the testing company or state. The table provides information on the performance of the students in your teacher preparation program on each teacher credential assessment used by your state. In cases where a student has taken a given assessment more than once, the highest score on that test is used. In the case of a teacher preparation program with fewer than 10 scores reported on any single initial teacher credential assessment during an academic year, the program shall collect and publish information with respect to an average pass rate and scaled score on each state credential assessment taken over a three-year period. (§205(a)(1)(B))

Please note that this page does not have an edit feature as the pass rates have already been through several rounds of verification. If you identify an error, please contact RTI's Title II Support Center and your testing company representative.

Use of Technology

1. Provide the following information about the use of technology in your teacher preparation program. Please note that choosing 'yes' indicates that your teacher preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(F\))

Does your program prepare teachers to:

- a. integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction

 Yes

 No

- b. use technology effectively to collect data to improve teaching and learning

 Yes

 No

- c. use technology effectively to manage data to improve teaching and learning

 Yes

 No

- d. use technology effectively to analyze data to improve teaching and learning

 Yes

 No

2. Provide a description of the evidence that your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction, and to use technology effectively to collect, manage, and analyze data in order to improve teaching and learning for the purpose of increasing student academic achievement. Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

Teacher candidates across all certification programs and their respective grade levels (elementary, middle, and high) gain experience in using educational technology as both a planning and instructional tool. Learning technology begins in the college classroom as each course utilizes a learning management system where candidates access resources, submit assignments, and engage in online discussion boards. In the Student Teaching term, teacher candidates create webpages to display their professional accomplishments. In their clinical field experiences, candidates use educational technology for classroom management (e.g., Class Dojo), instruction (e.g., Prezi and NearPod), and assessment (e.g., Plickers, Quizlet, and Kahoots). Faculty assess candidates on how effectively they incorporate educational technology into lesson planning and implementation. Additionally, faculty evaluate whether candidates are facilitating student learning by having students use educational technology.

Teacher Training

Provide the following information about your teacher preparation program.

(§205(a)(1)(G))

Note: This section is preloaded from the prior year's IPRC.

Teacher Training

1. Provide a description of the activities that prepare general education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

Elementary, middle, and secondary programs have a required course that prepares candidates to participate as a member of an individualized education program (IEP) team. Teacher candidates are introduced to historical as well as current legislation which insures rights to diverse learners as well as their families. The health and physical education programs have a course where teacher candidates learn about the current legislation in the field as well as the legal framework for the Individual Education Program (IEP). Candidates are prepared to participate in IEP program teams, which include interviews with teachers, parents, and students; classroom-based role-play referencing case studies; instruction in laws regarding students with special needs; and participating in IEP meetings during the student teaching term. The music education program prepares candidates to engage as members of an IEP team through course readings, guest speakers, and conversations with mentor teachers at observational sites.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Elementary, middle, and secondary programs have a required course that prepares candidates to participate as a member of an individualized education program (IEP) team. Teacher candidates are introduced to historical as well as current legislation which insures rights to diverse learners as well as their families. The health and physical education programs have a course where teacher candidates learn about the current legislation in the field as well as the legal framework for the Individual Education Program (IEP). Candidates are prepared to participate in IEP program teams, which include interviews with teachers, parents, and students; classroom-based role-play referencing case studies; instruction in laws regarding students with special needs; and participating in IEP meetings during the student teaching term. The music education program prepares candidates to engage as members of an IEP team through course readings, guest speakers, and conversations with mentor teachers at observational sites.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

Candidates from all certification programs take a course that prepares them to provide instruction to limited English proficient students. This course covers theories and instructional strategies for English Language Learners (ELL) including language acquisition theory (Cummins); third space, a standard sociocultural linguistic theory (the New London Group and Soja); and ELL proficiency levels so that teacher candidates can recognize when students have varying levels of English Language proficiency. In addition to coursework, teacher candidates learn to develop and implement instruction that explicitly addresses the needs of students with limited English proficiency. Beginning with lesson planning, teacher candidates are instructed and evaluated on classroom context and selecting materials. For classroom context, teacher candidates describe the cultural and linguistic backgrounds of students and their families as well as information regarding students ILPs, including English proficiency levels. When implementing their lessons, teacher candidates connect students' funds of knowledge and cultural knowledges to the instruction and assessments. They include accommodations made for students with ILPs. When describing and reflecting on assessments, teacher candidates describe how English language learners will be assessed by using visual or other forms of representation. During the Student Teaching term, teacher candidates design and teach a unit plan that differentiates instruction according to student abilities, needs, and funds of knowledge. Teacher candidates provide details about the students for whom the instructional unit is designed. They describe ability levels, including the language proficiency levels for English language learners. Teacher candidates provide a bulleted list that summarizes the class' funds of knowledge as well as describe how accommodations will be incorporated for all sub-groups. Accommodations consider students' needs, abilities, and strengths when determining the support and resources needed for learning during the unit, particularly students who have ILPs.
