

Team Taught Course Information:

The following is from the Faculty Status Council (FSC):

1. In team-taught course, always use IEQs in a way that makes sense for each particular course; you must decide between using one evaluation for multiple instructors versus one evaluation for each instructor. FSC's preference is for each instructor to do a separate IEQ as this provides the most unambiguous information. FSC acknowledges that individual IEQs, especially for three or more professors can become cumbersome for students so this option might not always be the best for each class situation.
2. Use supplemental evaluations whenever appropriate, not as substitutes for the IEQs, but to help clarify course-specific and/or instructor-specific issues. Note that the FSC considers these supplemental evaluations to be important forms of student feedback that are of significant use to the instructor, and that have great value to FSC in tenure and promotion considerations.

In the online system, all team-taught courses are set up so that a student in the course will answer items 1-4 only once and then items 5-19 for each individual instructor.
