MAJOR REQUIREMENTS

A minimum GPA of 2.0 in the major is required for graduation. Students interested in Philosophy as a major should begin exploring the discipline through any of several introductory courses, choosing one or more that most appeals to them. Except for PHI 106 or 218, any 100- or 200-level PHI course can serve this purpose. Students considering graduate study in Philosophy should complete PHI 218, study a foreign language, and, in consultation with Philosophy department, develop and complete an Independent Study in Philosophy (PH390A/490A with ALE or 390B/490B without ALE).

Core Courses

PHI 106 Introductory Reasoning OR

PHI 218 Symbolic Logic

PHI 214 Approaches to Ethics

PHI 305 Classical Philosophy

PHI 310 Philosophy from Descartes to Kant OR

PHI 315 Kant & His Philosophical Legacy

PHI 380 Philosophy Seminar I

Capstone Course

PHI 480 Philosophy Seminar II

Required Distribution Courses

Three (3) additional PHI course credits, chosen in consultation with the Department, two of which must be above the 100 level.

Electives

20 credits outside the major

NOTE: Philosophy majors also are expected to satisfy departmental standards for effectiveness in written and oral communication.

Students completing the major in Philosophy:

1. Are better able to identify, evaluate and construct sound arguments about texts, issues, and practices in the areas of the discipline, both in writing and orally;
2. Are better able to support, with relevant sophistication and subtlety, their own views about philosophic texts and issues, both in writing and orally;
3. Understand more fully significant texts, ideas, theories, and thinkers within the history of Western philosophy;
4. Understand more fully philosophy's potential to inform thought about contemporary issues of public policy, law, science, morality, etc.;
5. Understand more fully distinctive aspects of, and diversity within, the discipline of philosophy.
