

2019-2020 PHILOSOPHY MINOR

(Minimum of five course credits)

The Philosophy minor is designed to acquaint the student with some of the discipline's traditional areas of investigation (logic, ethics, metaphysics), with some significant texts and thinkers from the long history of philosophy, and to complement the student's study in other disciplines, such as Psychology, Political Science, the natural sciences, Religion, or to supplement a student's interests in medicine, business, or law. Students in Philosophy have pursued graduate study successfully in various fields, have entered the world of work in many kinds of organizations, and have addressed social issues through law and other means.

Study of Philosophy engages questions about how one should live, our place in the universe, the nature of thought, and ways of knowing. Philosophic inquiry involves carefully structured, thoughtful engagement with others, with texts, with ideas.

All coursework for the minor should be chosen in consultation with Department faculty.

Requirements

One (1) course in logic, chosen from the following:

PHI 106: Introductory Reasoning (Meets Practical Reasoning, PR, option)

OR

PHI 218: Symbolic Logic _____ 1

AND

One (1) history of philosophy course, chosen from:

PHI 305: Classical Philosophy (meets Western History Perspective Area) _____

PHI 310: Philosophy from Descartes to Kant _____

PHI 315: Kant and his Philosophical Legacies _____

AND

Three (3) additional PHI course credits chosen in consultation with the Department, one of which must be above the 100 level:

PHI _____ : _____ 1

PHI _____ : _____ 1

PHI _____ : _____ 1