

2020-2021 CREATIVE WRITING MINOR

The study and practice of Creative Writing builds intellectual, emotional, and artistic skill, empathy and curiosity. A minor in Creative Writing provides students the opportunity to learn the craft of creative writing and hone their talents in the genres of fiction, creative nonfiction and poetry through an intense and exciting range of coursework. From the fundamentals of craft to intermediate and advanced explorations of genre theory and techniques, students will experiment with writing exercises, develop their critical reading skills by learning to analyze exemplary works of literature and apply craft techniques to their own work. The focus of the minor is the writing workshop, in which students receive constructive feedback from their peers and instructor to improve their writing through the revision process.
